

CAMPUS

A WAR AGAINST WASTE

Students read poetry and short stories hanging from the 'story tree'

Write to your heart's desire, let us create to inspire", chanted students at Jadavpur University on July 24. It was the second day of Create to Inspire, a fellowship by Microsoft that uses the creative arts for social action. In its second year in Calcutta, Create to Inspire started on July 22 and is on till today, focusing on sensible management of solid waste and e-waste.

On July 24, the Green Zone at JU wore a colourful look as students decorated a tree with poetry and short stories on the theme "Green campus". Under the "story tree", students sat and read out poems and stories written by them.

Unlike last year, when students had to send individual applications, this time only groups could apply for the Create to Inspire fellowship. Out of the 20 groups that applied, nine were selected.

"We have chosen the groups on the basis of their ideas," said
